

STEAM Program Volunteer Volunteer Opportunity Description

The Academy is dedicated to opening its doors to all and we pride ourselves on serving a diverse audience from broad cultural heritages, socioeconomic backgrounds, and genders. Therefore, we encourage applications from candidates who value and have experience with diverse audiences, especially working with young children.

VOLUNTEER POSITION SUMMARY:

The California Academy of Sciences Family Programs Volunteer will support the California Academy of Sciences through informal and interactive educational engagements with guests of all ages, most specifically young children, on the public floor. Public Programs Staff will provide guidance to the volunteer by teaching or reviewing best practices for informal engagement, fundamental scientific principles, and Academy initiatives. Family Programs Volunteers are professional, accurate, and enthusiastic in their interactions. They will spend the majority of their shift engaging with children and facilitating explorative, open-ended activities. These activities include Family Nature Craft, a nature inspired, creative craft on weekends, and Tinkering Labs any day of the week, which include loose part and large block building, and Flight Lab experiments using a small wind tunnel. The volunteer will utilize prepared activity boxes that include engagement props and tools, as well as larger props advertising the engagement. The Volunteer will be provided all necessary materials, instructions, background information, and tips for success. This position is an opportunity to gain a wide variety of knowledge in informal science education and engaging all-age audiences and especially young children.
